Week of November 14, 2016

Several positive integers are written on a chalkboard. One can choose two of them, erase them, and replace them with their greatest common divisor and least common multiple. Prove that eventually the numbers on the board do not change.

(Putman Problem)